
Woolridge First To Sign Up

E. D. Woolridge of Hurtsville, already a "Tree Farmer', which means that he has considerable land devoted to reforestation, became the first landowner in Appomattox to sign up under the Reforestation of Timber Lands Act which became effective July 1. This program will reimburse the landowner one-half of the cost per acre to reforest with pines up to $20.00 per acre. The landowner can choose to receive 75% of the cost up to $30.00 per acre as a thirty-year no-interest loan. There's approximately $1 million two hundred thousand dollars to be used on this program this year in Virginia. Half of the money from an increase in the forest severance tax matched by an equal amount from the state general fund. Any private landowner is eligible for the benefits of this program, up to 500 acres of reforested land per year. County Forester Warren Taylor has information and application blanks for landowners interested in a profitable program.

A TRIBUTE TO AMERICAN PRISONERS OF WAR

by Rosetta Berkley

An attempt was made to free you from prison
That is why our hopes had so suddenly risen.

Although this attempt did fail.
It is you we hail.

We know you fought on orders.
We also realize that your freedom lies thousands of miles beyond Viet-Nam's borders.

You were brave men, true
That is why we tried so hard to rescue you.

Your families are hoping and praying.
Their hearts are heavy but they go without saying.

Your fellow Americans too have cares.
They have been waiting to pay your fares.

For your safe return they are ready to sacrifice.
They are so dedicated, they will pay even the highest price.

Their own lives they would give
So that in a democracy you could once more live.

We all have the dream that someday you will be together.
With your loved ones forever and ever.

For they long to have you near.
Your voices they to hear.

We know home is your desire.
And we hope to have you here before that Viet-Namese War will expire.

You will once more be in peace.
And won't have to think of those darn Viet-Namese.

Gunsmith Moves

Robert Carr, gunsmith of Wreck Island Creek, has moved from Appomattox County to Montvale, Va. (Bedford County)

Carr, who received his apprenticeship in gunsmithing from the late Hacker Martin, is a member of the National Muzzle Loading Riflemen's Association. He specializes in Kentucky rifles and pistols plus work on modern guns.

At Montvale he will live at the Rockydale Farm (State Rt. 617) His shop will still be known as the Va. Backwoods Long Rifle Gun Shop. His friends and associate, the late Hacker Martin, had several names for his gun shop located at the Wreck Island Creek Mill. At various time it was known as Maude and Hacker's Gun Shop, and in later years, as Ye Olde Thumpdoodle Water mill and Huckleberrry Ridge Rifle Manufactury.

Carr's new location is within six miles of the Skyline Drive. The farm, itself, is heavily forested, with deer, elk and bear finding a haven there.

Big Increase In Donors

Virginians are signing up as eye donors at a rate more than twice that of any previous year.

Figures supporting that statement were released today by L. Paul Byron, Chairman of the Board of Old Dominion Eye Bank, co-ordinating agency for eye donation in eastern Virginia

Since the start of the eye bank's fiscal year last July 1, 5,244 new eye donor pledges have been received by the Richmond organization -- bringing the total on file to over 40,000.

In the nine months of the current fiscal year, almost twice as many pledges have been made by Virginians than in any of the previous thirteen years of the eye bank's history.

This year, the eye bank made a special appeal to the Lions Clubs to help meet the growing demand for human eye tissue by extra effort in eye donor solicitation.

Virginia Lions answered that plea in dramatic fashion.

The supply of human eye tissue is now nearly sufficient to fill current needs. Sight-restoring corneal transplant operations have established a very satisfactory record of success, thus increasing demand for human eye tissue through eye donor pledges.

Pledge cards and literature are available from any member of Lions Club and from Old Dominion Eye Bank, Richmond Eye Hospital, Richmond, VA.
